FAMILY- THE CHANGING SCENARIO

Veena C Vasanth
Assistant Professor
Department of Hindi

Family is an epitome of love. The joy which the family gives us is unpredictable. It's said that charity begins at home. We may not be fit for the society but we are the first and the best version in the family. To love and to be loved is a blessing. To care and to be cared is a boon. The support of a family is enough to face the hurdles of our life .

But nowadays the usage of the term family has changed. We all are part of certain search engines, be it facebook or whatsapp or instagram we simply tag our friends as family. I really feel pity for those poor chaps who simply try to cook up. I suddenly recollect an incident which took place in the classroom. The exams were nearing, a boy was so afraid that he asked me several questions related to the subject. I explained everything and I also advised him. I asked him "don't you have friends?" He answered me back that "I don't have friends, I have my whole family behind me "He was hugging his friends and saying this. I really felt pity for him. And I also heard my friends introducing their friends as blood. Are they really depriving the meaning of family?

Moreover an individual's character is shaped by his or her family. We learn certain behaviors and mannerisms from the family which we apply in the future course of life. It will be really beneficial for us to a great extent. Acquiring something in negative sense can destroy us.

The role of sacrifice also plays an important part in the family. We are the biological results of our parents. Our parents

Surprisingly, even phonology plays a Part in this “From the point of view. Of expecting the pronunciation of a speaker to communicative contribute to his effectiveness, someone who speaks fluently but with lots of wrong sounds in the speech stream is going to be as unintelligible as someone who speaks in disjointed and hesitant way but with the right sounds is going to be tiresome and tating to listen to Neither E going be Communicatively successful.” (Parker and Graham, 1994: 6.) Gower et al (128) make a similar point when they say “There may be difficulties of pronunciation, depending on the first language of your students. Structures which contain problematic sounds such as fal or // will need special attentionNow it is time for the last rehearsal. Before the actual event. Here we should allow them to use the newly learned language item through freer practice, by offering productive tasks that facilitate use of all the language they know Lastly, pay attention to reminding students of the inewly) learned items as often as possible, even at the expense of naturalness, by frequently returning to them through revision tasks Good luck with your grammar lessons!
